Master of Legal Studies

The Master of Legal Studies (M.L.S.) is a post-baccalaureate degree program designed for those who wish an advanced knowledge of the law and the legal system but who do not wish to become lawyers. The M.L.S. course of study is designed to provide non-lawyer professionals with the skills and knowledge necessary to identify, understand, and respond to commonly encountered legal issues. The M.L.S. program is offered as a general (tailored) degree in legal studies or with a concentration in health law and policy. Those pursuing the tailored course of study, however, will be encouraged to design a program within the curricular offerings of the law school which meets their more specific needs.

M.L.S. General (Tailored)

This tailored M.L.S. program is directed at serving those who are professionals in fields where there is significant legal regulation and need an introduction into basic legal principles, but who do not aspire to become lawyers themselves. This program is particularly relevant to those who deal with a complex array of state and federal legal requirements in performing their daily tasks. As the complexity of the modern workplace intensifies, due largely to increasing regulatory requirements, the demand for individuals with a knowledge of and a comfort level with the law will increase. The general M.L.S. program will help satisfy this demand.

M.L.S. in Health Law and Policy

The M.L.S. with a concentration in health law and policy is designed for those who are working (or desire to work) in health care fields and who need an introduction to the basic legal principles that are important to the health care field, but who do not wish to become lawyers themselves. In particular, physicians, hospital administrators, risk management specialists, human resources professionals, employees of insurance companies, and other health care professionals who, on a regular basis, deal with legal issues ranging from state and federal regulation of the delivery of health care services to the privacy of health-related patient information. In addition, non-lawyer government workers who are employed by agencies that regulate health-care providers also would benefit from an exposure to these basic legal principles and their application to the health care field.

Curriculum and Requirements

Coursework. To earn the M.L.S. degree students are required to complete 30 credit hours. The curriculum is designed to introduce students to legal study through two courses, Introduction to American Law and Legal System, and Legal Writing and Research for Non-Lawyers. In addition to these two required courses (three credit hours each), students will complete the remainder of their course work by taking regular law school classes. Those opting for the health law and policy concentration complete essentially the same curriculum as other M.L.S. students, but are required to complete a minimum of 12 hours in health care-related courses.

Research. Candidates must also write a thesis that demonstrates the ability to research and write at an acceptable graduate level. The thesis will be written under the supervision of a faculty sponsor approved for such purpose by the Director of Graduate Legal Studies. A candidate will earn three credit hours for successful completion of the thesis. The thesis requirement may be satisfied by successful completion of a course that satisfies the law school’s senior writing requirement.

Time Limitation. Students must complete all requirements for the M.L.S. program within four years of first matriculation.

Admission Criteria and Procedure

Admission to the M.L.S. program requires positive action by the Graduate Admissions Committee. Admission is based on demonstration of academic and professional achievement and academic and professional promise. Those whose first language is other than English must also demonstrate proficiency in English. In order to matriculate, students must also be admitted to the SIU Graduate School. This program requires a non-refundable $50.00 application fee that must be submitted with the Application for Admission. Applicants must pay this fee by credit card.
